MAXIMUM TARIFF ON AMERICAN GOODS

FRANCE'S ACTION NO SURPRISE TO WASHINGTON.

WAYS TO MEET INCREASE UNDER DISCUSSION.

WINE DRINKERS MAY SUFFER.

Washington, Nov. 1.—France's refusal for America's olive, is the action of the Paris Government in putting in effect to-day the maximum tariff against goods coming from the United States. It did not surprise Treasury officials.

Ever since notice was given to Paris that the reciprocity agreement with its low rates on both sides of the Atlantic would expire at the end of October the United States has been anticipating the step taken at Paris to-day.

The Government cannot directly meet the French maximum until next spring, but the question of what to do in the event the maximum were applied on the other side has been canvassed so some extent.

Sparkling wines seem to be the most vulnerable point, for such it can be called, for officials here do not assume that this is the beginning of a tariff war of itself. A jump from $6 to $9.50 per dozen in the duty on champagne, which is what the restoration of regular tariff rates means, and the official talk of prospective substantial raising of that figure to the American maximum when the opportunity comes on March 23, next, have not helped French sentiment toward the United States.

It has been reported that a preservative in the French wine may prove an available weapon of retaliation because of its possible inclusion within the articles which the United States has the privilege of the pure food and drug act.

The subject is one that will engage the attention of the new board appointed by the President to advise with him particularly regarding the maximum and minimum features of the new tariff.

Ty Cobb Leads Auto Tourists.

Greenville, S. C., Nov. 1.—The New York Herald-American Journal automobile road tour arrived here at 2:30 o'clock today. The party received an ovation, and to-night many courtesies were shown them by the citizens.

The party, which included Ty Cobb and other famous athletes, were entertained at the Poinsett Club, and later a reception was tendered them at the hotel. Cobb, who is the star of the tour, delivered a speech of welcome.

No further details were reported to-day, and all of the cars arrived here on good-time. The cars leave to-morrow morning at 7 o'clock on their way to Atlanta.

None Better.

RIGHTS OF THE VOTERS AS THEY ARE PRESCRIBED BY KENTUCKY STATUTES

3405. PREVENTING OR ATTEMPTING TO PREVENT VOTER FROM VOTING, INTIMIDATION OR INTERFERING WITH ELECTION OFFICER—FELONY.—Any person who shall unlawfully attempt to prevent or prevent any voter from casting his ballot, or shall attempt to, or intimidate, any person or voter so as to prevent him from casting his ballot, or who shall unlawfully interfere with the officers of election in the discharge of their duties as such, shall be deemed guilty of a felony, and, upon conviction, be confined in the penitentiary for a period of years, of not less than one or more than five years, for each offense. The fact that the person or persons so offending may be an officer or officers of the Federal Government, or of the State or any district, county, town, or city thereof (this applies to police), or of election, shall not relieve them of the responsibility or penalty for the violation of this section.

3422. ELECTIONEERING—WRONGFUL OBTENTION—EXHIBITION.—MARKING OR DELIVERY OF BALLOT. No officer of election shall do any electioneering on election day, nor disclose to any person, the name of any candidate for whom any elector has voted. No person whatever shall do any electioneering on election day within any polling place, or within fifty feet thereof. No person shall apply for or receive any ballot in any polling place other than that in which he is entitled to vote. No person shall show his ballot, after it is marked, to any person in such a way as to reveal the contents thereof or the name of any candidate for whom he has marked his vote; nor shall any person examine a ballot which any elector has prepared for voting; or solicit the elector to show the same. No voter shall deliver any ballot to the judges of the election to be voted, except the one he receives from the clerk. No voter shall place any mark upon his ballot, or suffer or permit any person to do so, by which it may be afterwards identified as the one voted by him. Whoever shall violate any provision of this section, shall be fined not less than twenty (20) nor more than five hundred (500) dollars, or imprisonment for not less than ten (10) days or more than six (6) months, or both, so fined and imprisoned, at the discretion of the jury.

that have not yet voted "dry" in option elections, and even in those counties in which the prohibition bill has been passed, making a fight for the control of the municipal machinery, looking toward a second option election, which may be held two years from the date of the first one.

The Republicans have been in power in most of the States, and in the State, and it was a Republican Legislature that passed the county option law.

FIGHT MACHINE HARD.

And Philadelphia Citizens Hope To Elect District Attorney.

Philadelphia, Nov. 1.—Pennsylvania to-morrow will elect a State Supreme Court Justice, a State Treasurer and an Auditor General, and will pass on ten constitutional amendments looking toward the abolishment of the annual spring elections and the substituting of municipal and county elections on alternate years from the State and national elections.

The importance of the State election has been overshadowed by the contest in Philadelphia for the election of a District Attorney. United States Senator Peffer and his opponent, William J. Bryan, the Democratic leader, has given no attention to State politics this year and has been busy with the national leading newspapers have devoted but little space to politics.

Providence, R. I., Nov. 1.—The Republican and Democratic campaign managers claim to-night that their respective candidates for Governor, Charles D. Ives and John W. Weeks, are leading in the polls.

PEARY INDORSED BY GEOGRAPHIC SOCIETY.

SUMMONED TO WASHINGTON AND CROSS-QUESTIONED.

AN OFFICIAL ANNOUNCEMENT EXPECTED TO-MORROW.

COMMANDER IN WASHINGTON.

Washington, Nov. 1.—Commander Robert E. Peary practically was indorsed as the discoverer of the North Pole by the National Geographic Society to-day.

Every indication points to the fact that Peary's personal statements before the subcommittee of the society to-day convinced its members that he had set foot on the top of the world. The explorer has been invited to deliver the first of his public lectures before the society here on November 12, and to appear before the committee on Wednesday.

Peary was a guest of Admiral Chester to-night, but he declined positively to discuss in any way the testimony he gave before the committee. He was confident that the committee would reach the verdict of the investigation.

Taft Takes Text From State Fair Exhibits.

Jackson, Miss., Entertains Chief Executive.

Over 30,000 Excursionists Pour Into City.

VARDAMAN PAYS A CALL.

Jackson, Miss., Nov. 1.—President Taft, a three-day excursion, a gala day at the State fair, a balloon ascension and a thrilling parachute leap gave Jackson to-day a share of honors unique and unparalleled in the history of the old city. The President visited the State fair and the State fair gave return checks to all who wanted to see the circus across the street, and in this way a combination of the three great attractions was formed. The balloon ascension was free for all. "Uncle Joe" Cannon was to have been an added feature in the city to-night, but he had been summoned to the East on business and passed through Jackson this afternoon without stopping.

Secretary of War Dickinson rejoined the presidential party this afternoon. President Taft left at midnight for Columbus, Miss., the birthplace of Secretary Dickinson. He will spend three hours there and will reach Birmingham, Ala., at 7:10 to-morrow evening.

Crowds Pour Into Jackson.

The railroads handled 30,000 excursionists into Jackson to-day. They were fairly saturated with pleasures. It was an event in most of their lives to see a President of the United States, and Mr. Taft in the first place, and to visit Jackson. Mr. McKinley passed through the city on one occasion, but made only a few remarks from the end of his car. In addition to President Taft, however, the excursionists had the fair and the circus to choose from, and both attractions had banner crowds.

Henry T. Duncan, Jr., Writes Desha Breckinridge.

ANOTHER CHAPTER OF LEXINGTON POLITICS.

REPLY TO ALLEGATIONS OF BEING A COWARD.

BRECKINRIDGE COMES BACK.

Lexington, Ky., Nov. 1.—(Special.)—Henry T. Duncan, Jr., campaign manager of the local Fusion ticket who was so bitterly denounced by Desha Breckinridge on the stage of the opera-house at the close of the Fusion rally Saturday night and still more vigorously scored by Mr. Breckinridge in his paper, the Lexington Herald, Sunday morning, to-day made public the following letter which he last night sent to Mr. Breckinridge:

Mr. Duncan's Letter.

"Lexington, Ky., October 31, 1909.—Mr. Desha Breckinridge, Lexington, Ky.—Sir: I shall not permit myself to be diverted from the work that I have undertaken in this campaign by engaging in a personal altercation with anyone, or permit epithets, vituperation or abuse of me to distract the public attention from the issues involved.

"As to whether or not you were willing to bargain the support of The Herald to Mr. Stanley Milward in consideration of securing the city printing is a matter of veracity between you and Mr. Milward, and the public, it seems to me, will have no trouble in awarding the decision.

"As to whether you, who have assumed the role of the moral censor of this community, or I am a hypocrite in this race the intelligent and clean-thinking public can also easily determine.

"Your statement that I am a coward is no more a guarantee of its truth than the truth of any other statement to which you testify. Whether I am or not a coward is a question which you can settle by putting it to a test at any time, for place, or under any circumstance you desire to seek.

HENRY T. DUNCAN, JR.

Mr. Breckinridge's Reply.

Desha Breckinridge to-night made public a letter in reply to Henry T. Duncan's last, the letter having been delivered this afternoon to Mr. Duncan. The concluding paragraph of Mr. Breckinridge's letter is as follows:

"You are entirely correct in stating that your statement that I am a coward is no more a guarantee of its truth than the truth of any other statement to which you testify. It is your conduct made up the case on which the public will decide that question.

"I have no desire or intention of putting you to another test as to whether you are a coward or not. You know the facts of the conversation between us Saturday night as well as I, and have read what I have said of you. If you are content to rest under that I am quite content to have you so rest."

CARD FROM MILWARD.

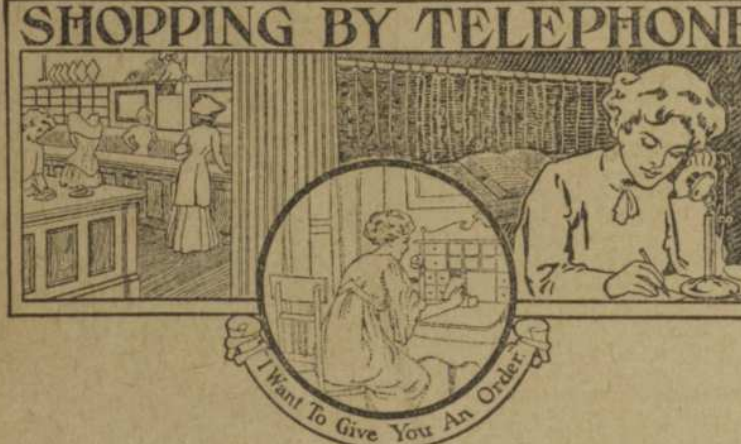

Stanley Milward, of this city, member of the State Board of Charitable Institutions, also to-day issued a card which he addressed to the public in which he reiterates the statements of his letter which Mr. Breckinridge Saturday night and in his published article yesterday denounced as a lie. In concluding his card Mr. Milward says: "I am not willing in this controversy to descend to Mr. Breckinridge's gutter-snipe style of argument. As to whether he is a coward or not, the public is entirely free to accept the verdict of the people."

Mr. Milward appends a statement from his father, Col. W. R. Milward, in which Col. Milward says his son, Stanley, made to him soon after the alleged occurrence the same statement as that in the letter and which Mr. Breckinridge denounced.

HIGH SCHOOL

Boys Listen To Lecture by Foyd Winchester.

TELLS WHY CLASSICS SHOULD BE STUDIED.

HAS BEARING ON SUCCESS IN PROFESSIONAL LIFE.

NOT ISOLATED PHENOMENA.

Boyd Winchester delivered a most instructive lecture on "Study of the Classics" at the Boys' High School yesterday morning. He spoke in part as follows:

An infant nation is not to be dealt with as you would deal with a country grown-up, self-conscious, self-contempting. Those to whom was intrusted the guidance of a republic that had yet to learn the rudiments of self-government, and to whom was given the development of the resources of the nation, had to labor as no people ever before labored. During this period the United States provided for the intellectual exigencies of their people and shaped their instruction according to the circumstances of their unparalleled position. There was no failure to afford to all classes the very highest amount of mental cultivation possible, regard being had to the age of the country, to the nature of its institutions and to the essential character, pursuits and objects of its people. We have conducted the world of our unapproachable skill in the art of material development. Wealth, power, aristocracy and the usual results of triumphant industry are already won.

The Next Step Is Cultivation.

The next steps in the rapid march should not be wanting. The highest order of intellectuality and culture is the requirement of erudition for its own sake—demands leisure and opportunity, such as the possession of wealth and the subduence of a feverish pursuit of gold, and nothing else, are calculated to afford more than a limited years ago Horace Walpole declared "the chief object of the American mind is to be practical. The classics cannot be eliminated from the main currents of our national life without seeing that they are running with continually accelerating speed and fuller volume in the channels which they have hitherto hollowed out, and in the direction they have heretofore pursued. In the forceful words of Emerson, "These are the saddle and the ride mankind."

Things and their uses, physical laws and their methods, the transmission of substances, ores and metals, gases and imponderable agents—such are the things which command the brain and brawn of the day.

The importance of liberal studies is underrated; classical diversions are refrained from, or kept locked up on shelves, far from the crown of the man of business and the man of science, as well as from the pleasure of the man of letters. The single that has fledged his wings in the technical schools, modern subjects those which are the basis of the liberal studies, a clear connection with the practical needs of the life of the age, are gaining upon and tending to displace the classical languages and literatures, which, a hundred years ago, under the name of "liberal studies," or humanizing studies, formed the staple of a higher liberal education. There is a growing insistence on the practical gainfulness or remunerativeness of study, its direct and easily recognizable bearing on success in professional life.

Never has the apothegm of Wordsworth been more applicable.

"The world is too much with us; late or soon, getting and spending, we lay waste our powers."

Vain As It Is Foolish.

It is as vain as it is foolish to decry efficiency as an educational ideal, but it is right to insist that such an association be carried so far as to neglect other lines of education at least as indispensable to social welfare. Without a moment abandoning the purely utilitarian point of view, the strongest arguments can be urged for retaining in our educational system those branches of culture which do not bear the name of efficiency, national or individual, which neither raise our "output" nor help us to resist foreign competition.

There is no purpose to disparage utility, properly understood and pursued. Modern life, as it comes, is too restless, too competitive, naturally tends to an education suited to the times. But material development and prosperity are all that are essential for the making of a great people. Movement is not necessarily progress and the advance in civilization cannot be measured by the increase in the number of skyscraping buildings.

Plato distinguishes between the education which aims only at outward and worldly success, and the true liberal education, which fits men for perfect citizenship; the latter he declares, "is the only education which, upon our scale, serves the state; the other sort of training which aims at the acquisition of wealth or bodily strength, or more diversions apart from intelligence and justice, is called education at all."

Something Grand.

There is something grander than to subdue external nature and bind her mysteries in chains held by iron hands. To develop the native mind of a people, to lead forth the genius and sentiment of the soul and to preserve them from enduring from the wrong of time; to pour through every avenue into the popular mind the rays of knowledge, until the faint dawn of general intelligence shall be the objects which should claim the earliest and latest thought of a people.

"The end of education," says Richter, "is to elevate above the spirit of the age." It is not necessary to deprecate the value of specific technical and scientific training in order to exalt the worth of the more complete development. Classical culture is not advocated in opposition to, but in alliance with, scientific culture, to precede over and direct it.

Science, we must concede, has come to stay, and no doubt, to dominate our lives more and more. Let us guard against giving it too high a place, too great a preponderance in our education, for science discusses force and methods, but says nothing of God, freedom and immortality. Science leads us to the free of knowledge, not to the tree of life. We should not accept, therefore, the narrowness of the modern which are nowadays made on behalf of technical and commercial education, as the end-all and be-all.

Needs of Our Time.

The needs of our time and country stimulate special attention to these subjects. Here knowledge is business and we can hold our industrial pre-eminence with all that hangs upon it unless we push on scientific and technical education. The training, unless regulated and qualified by broader culture, can only end in breeding in us a spirit of experiment and a contempt for the past, making us credulous of quick improvement, hopeful of discovering panaceas, content with the present, and end in debilitating, instead of enlarging, the spiritual nature. We cannot afford to neglect the spiritual in the inventions that have revolutionized our industries.

Not more common than to hear assertions that classical attainments are superfluous elegances and unsuited to the practical duties of life.

Pericles' Idea of Beauty.

Pericles, the great Athenian, describing the glory of the community of which he was so illustrious a member, said: "We of Athens are lovers of the beautiful, yet simple in our tastes. We cultivate the mind without loss of manliness. Our object should be to bring the Periclean ideas of beauty, simplicity and cultivation to mind within the reach of those who do the hard work of the world. It can be done without impairing the skill of our handicraftsmen or the manliness of life.

WORK TRAIN WRECKED ON BURNED TRESTLE.

Fireman Killed and Two Other Trainmen Injured in Tennessee.

Trenton, Tenn., Nov. 1.—A bad wreck occurred on the Mobile and Ohio about 4 o'clock this morning. A work train bound for Rutherford ran into a trestle which had burned one mile south of town. The engine and several cars went over the trestle and were demolished. Fireman Ivey, of Jackson, was killed; Brakeman C. Pringle, of Jackson, badly wounded. The injured men were brought to Trenton.

AEROPLANE CATCHES FIRE AND TANK EXPLODES.

Aviator At Hamburg Is Forced To Jump From Machine and Is Severely Injured.

Hamburg, Nov. 1.—Aviation week opened here to-day with what nearly proved to be a fatal accident. A mechanic, Pequet, was making a flight in an aeroplane at a considerable height when flames broke out. A moment later the benzine tank exploded. Pequet succeeded in clinging to the earth, but the danger of burning to death was so pressing that he jumped from the machine while it was yet some fifteen or twenty feet in the air. He was injured about the chest and was carried to a hospital. Apparently his injuries are not serious. The cloth wings of the aeroplane were consumed.

Weigher Charged With Fraud.

New York, Nov. 1.—Joseph Donnellan, an assistant customs weigher, was arrested to-day charged with defrauding the Government by underweighing sugar. The complaint alleges that Donnellan admitted a cargo of sugar from Java at less than the actual weight.
